Nancy won't g it from iders

R the rest of the team," she says bravely. Naughty Nancy – who's leaving her cosy Kent home where she loves playing "lady of the manor" to jet to the Aussie outback this week – has already proved that when the going gets tough, she gets going. The blonde bombshell was a cheeky cheerleader in the recent Sky One football reality show The Match, and spent five gruelling days in training. She admits: "When they asked me to do it, I thought that it would be fun, but the rehearsals were really hard work. But in the end I really loved it – it was great to shake my pom-poms!"

■ Mind you, being a former Stringfellows lapdancer means sizzling Nancy is well used to strutting her stuff.

But although she is the saucy face and body of Ann Summers undies, it would be wrong to dismiss Nancy as having nothing going on up top. The feisty babe has plenty of gusto, and knows what she wants from her career. She's appeared on the All Star Comedy Show with husband Vic. And last year the hot honey played Greta in hit movie Love Actually, bagging the role through sheer front.

She explains: "Ages ago, I was in a coffee shop and the writer and director Richard Curtis walked in.

"I went up to him, handed him my card and said: 'I'm a model and actress, so if ever you need an actress or a model, call me'. A year and a half later I got a call saying they needed someone to play Greta. He wanted a tall blonde and remembered me."

■ And only a few months ago, Nancy faced grisly spectres that go bump in the night as she was holed up in a haunted castle for reality show I'm Famous and Frightened.

This illustrates just the sort of steely nature which is sure to help her make it through I'm A Celebrity. After all, who knows which scary celeb the stunning babe could encounter on her way to the Bush Telegraph!

JANE O'GORMAN SOLVES YOUR PROBLEMS TODAY AND EVERY DAY

PERVY PAL CAUGHT US AT IT

I WAS giving my girlfriend oral sex the other night when my best mate walked in on us.

Now he won't let me forget what he saw. My head was between her thighs and she was writhing away and groaning when suddenly the door opened.

I didn't realise he was there at first, but he tapped me on my naked shoulder and asked if he could join in. My girlfriend leapt up and covered herself with the duvet, and I was furious that he'd disturbed us.

I've been sharing a flat with him for a year and in that time he's never had a girlfriend or even brought a one night stand home.

After my girlfriend had gone home, he kept asking me what it was like and how you did it, in a very juvenile way.

He always used to be bragging about his sexual conquests, but I now think he's still a virgin at 24!

Worse, when we've been out for a drink with our other mates, he keeps telling them about what he saw and it's really beginning to annoy me. How can I shut him up?

JANE SAYS: Your flatmate is behaving like an overgrown schoolboy and I agree with you that he probably has had no sexual experiences himself. You need to tell him that his behaviour is driving you up the wall and if he doesn't stop, you'll tell all your mates he's been lying about his own sexual activities.

He's clearly jealous of what you and your girlfriend get up to. You could tell him that if he wants some hints, you're happy to help. But for the time being he's got to keep his trap shut and butt out.

Hunky lover a stinker

I'VE been going out with my boyfriend for two months - and he stinks.

I have explained that he should use a deodorant, but he says men don't do that cissy stuff. He says his mum brought him up to wash every day and that should be enough. But it isn't.

He also says I should be turned on by the smell of his armpits, but I'm not.

He is very good looking and unless you get close to him you can't notice it. But when we get into bed, the smell is overwhelming.

There's no way I can get under the duvet to give him oral sex, because it makes me feel like retching.

JANE SAYS: Ugh! It's vital that your bloke uses a good deodorant and thoroughly cleans himself down below.

He might have a good wash every day, but insist he has a scrub before you get into bed.

It may ruin the spontaneity of your love-making, but at least you won't want to vomit all the time.

If he refuses, withdraw all sexual activity until he gets the point!

Kids leave me too tired for sex

I SPLIT up with my boyfriend six months ago and although we've been trying to get back together, we can't get it right.

We've been living together for three years and have two children.

Our daughter is two and our baby is not a year yet, so I'd really love our relationship to work - even if it's just for the kids. But all we do is argue.

He moved out because he said I was fat, frumpy and didn't give him any of my time.

But I was - and still am - exhausted with looking after the children and some days I didn't even get time to put clothes on during the day.

Once he'd left, I found out that he'd been shagging some old tart for ages, even when I was pregnant. But then I didn't feel like making love, so I suppose I can't blame him.

After a while, he came back and I promised to make an effort. But it was so hard to do everything around the house and still feel like I wanted to have sex when I got into bed every night. We were soon arguing again and he moved out.

He came back again after a couple of weeks to see whether we could try again, but the same thing happened.

I am doing my best, because he works so hard. I know he needs to rest when he gets home, so I'm trying to think of a way we could actually make our relationship work. I have begged him to come back for one last try and he's thinking about it.

Can you help me?

JANE SAYS: Yes, I can! This bloke needs a rocket up his arse to get him to give you a hand with your children and to cut you some slack.

Frankly, I think you'd be better off without him - and until you get rid of that sign on your head that says "walk all over me" nothing is going to change.

Your children are his, too, and everyone knows that two small children are totally time-consuming and exhausting.

He might be working hard, but so are you. I think you need to make it clear to him that unless he helps you when he gets home, you are going to be too knackered for love.

Perhaps he could look after the kids one night a week and you could go out with your mates.

Tell him that unless he agrees to those conditions, he's not welcome back. When he's around, it seems to me you're looking after three children!

And why on earth should you forgive him for his affair in the way you did?

You deserve better than this guy, even though he is the father of your children.

Surely it's better for your children to have a less stressed mother bringing them up on her own rather than a frazzled woman trying to hold everything together without any help. Think about it!

Ex talk a turn-off

MY fiancé was chucked by his previous girlfriend when she left him for his best mate.

When we started to go out he was still in shock, so I tried to encourage him to talk about her because I thought it would help him get over her.

But after almost two years, he still goes on about how wonderful she was. From her cooking to her cleaning, from the clothes she wore to the way she made love, I feel I now know this woman inside out.

I can take most of this, except for him telling me how she used to be in bed.

It's not that I feel jealous. I just feel that I'll go crazy if he tells me one more time that she used to do this thing with her tongue, or let him do certain things to her breasts (which he can't do to mine because they are too small), or that her favourite position was her on top.

It's just too much information and I regret the day I first tried to help him by getting him to talk about it all. The other day, I even found a small picture of this bloody woman in his bedside table.

I haven't said anything to him yet, because I don't know what to do. I do love him, but it feels like there are three of us in this relationship.

JANE SAYS: It was very noble of you to try to help him get over his ex, but it seems to have backfired.

You have got to sit him down and tell him that if you hear another word about his woman, he's going to find himself on his own again.

Explain that you love him, but enough is enough.

Show him the picture - and if he accuses you of snooping, tell him that he shouldn't keep secrets from you and that if he thinks the relationship is going any further, he'd better get his act together.

If he doesn't like it, then I think you'll see that your relationship really has no future.

HOW CAN I SAY NO?

Day Three

BUT BECCY REALLY ONLY WANTS PHIL TO PUT UP SHELVES

Thanks! Two sugars, by the way

Here you are, and there's some more downstairs

All right?

I'm not totally happy with the bedroom shelves. Could you come and have a look?

I'll be straight up. I'll just finish putting this away

Come up when you're ready

FIVE MINUTES LATER

Like what you see?

This must be a dream!

WHAT'S HOT TO WATCH

CORRIE'S Krazy Karen is determined to get her paws on this car she unwittingly helped win. Tonight (ITV1, 7.30pm) she's over at the Barlows' staking her claim - which gives Ken the opportunity to do his diplomatic routine. "I'm afraid Karen has a point," he declares, "morally it not legally." So he proposes a compromise. "I think we need to come to some kind of collective ownership," he announces. "There are seven members of the team, seven days in the week." See, no wonder this bloke revolutionised Weatherfield's education system.

Anyway, Karen grudgingly accepts the deal, taking possession of the car for the rest of the day. She then drives Steve to a quiet spot in the country. "Why don't we make a baby?" she suddenly cries, leaping on top of him. But their moment of passion is short-lived, because she manages to stick her hand in a dirty nappy that's been left on the back seat. Needless to say, she blames this setback on Tracy. "She's flippin' ruined it again!" she cries. Odd, though, because it actually looks like one of Amy's.

...on last night's telly

SOME people would get arrested to appear on telly, and MACINTYRE'S BIG STING (Five) gave them the opportunity to do just that.

In a wickedly clever twist on the game show format, undercover investigative reporter Donal MacIntyre turned into a bizarre cross between Noel Edmonds and Crimewatch's Nick Ross.

With the help of police, MacIntyre set up auditions for a fake TV programme called The Great Big Giveaway Show.

It was a "sting" to lure some of the Portsmouth area's 3,800 accused offenders who have skipped bail and dodged court warrants into the arms of the law by tempting them with offers of fame and fortune.

Seemingly, the thought that appearing on a TV quiz might not be the cleverest move for someone wanted by the police never occurred to these dimwits.

After receiving letters inviting them to take part in the show, and win as much as £50,000, they turned up at Portsmouth's Guildhall in their droves.

On arrival, they were interviewed by researchers and ushered into a "chill out" area, before being led onto the stage - where they were promptly arrested by two police officers.

To give the pretend show "credibility", the dupes were fawned over by host and hostess Neil and Christine Hamilton.

One mug described himself to a researcher as "a friendly person, outgoing", blissfully unaware that he was about to be going out in a way he could never have imagined - in a police van.

Even as the handcuffs locked on his wrists, he chuckled: "Go on, get out of it!" as if this was all a prank, and the arresting officer was really Jeremy Beadle.

Christine asked another of Hampshire's most wanted if he'd ever been on the telly before.

"Yeah, on Crimewatch! I'm only joking!" he guffawed. He soon realised that was a very bad joke. Television at its most arresting.

TARGET

HOW many words of four letters or more can you make from the letters shown here? In making a word, each letter may be used once only. Each must contain the centre letter and there must be at least one nine-letter word. No plurals or verb forms ending in 's', no words with initial capitals and no words with a hyphen or apostrophe permitted. The first word of a phrase is permitted (e.g. inkjet in inkjet printer).

TODAY'S TARGET
 Good 16; very good 24; excellent 32 (or more).

CAN you crack the Alphabeater? It's a twist on our popular Alphapuzzle, designed to stretch your mental muscles to the limit. Each grid number represents a letter – or black square. As in Alphapuzzle, every letter of the alphabet is used. But now you have to complete the grid too! Use the given letter or letters and the given black square or squares – below the main grid – to start.

To add to the fiendish fun, Alphabeater is 'rotationally symmetrical'. So, for example, if there is a six-letter word Across which starts in the top left corner, there will be a corresponding six-letter word Across which ends in the bottom right corner square. Every black square has one such symmetrical 'twin', but the 'twin' may not always share the same number. This can help you identify other black squares.

Of course, if the centre square is black, it has no corresponding 'twin'. Solution tomorrow.

Stuck? Try the Extra Letter Line below: (Deduct three minutes for each extra clue letter heard.) Callers will also be given two black square numbers free of any penalty.

SO the politically correct brigade is trying to ban Santa from shops and public places, in case he offends Muslims.

I challenge these idiots to tell me exactly what Muslim countries stop their residents from doing in case it upsets any Christian inhabitants.

And a recent telly advert featured a number of people running around in Santa outfits. So how many official complaints from Muslims were there about that?

Why don't these busybodies get a life and stop interfering in other people's?
